

Application Document Review

Professional perspective on how your completed application presents you as a whole person.

Guiding your journey through higher education with confidence, purpose, and a long-term perspective.

Who this is for

Designed for students, primarily in 11th and 12th grade, who are actively preparing college applications and do not need the broader college-goals, college-list, or affordability conversation.

BEST FIT	ACTIVE APPLICATION REVIEW
Typical stage	Primarily grades 11-12 with completed or near-completed materials
Primary focus	How the application materials work together as one student profile
Student's role	Write all content, make final revisions, and retain ownership of the application

What may be reviewed

- Common Application or another agreed-upon core application
- Activities section
- Honors and awards
- Personal statement
- A defined number of supplemental essays or school-specific essay sets
- Additional information section, when applicable
- Other materials agreed upon before the review begins

The VeriPathways review lens

VeriPathways reads the application from the perspective of an experienced higher-education professional. Feedback focuses on what the materials collectively communicate - not on a formula for admission.

- Clarity of the student's message and overall impression
- Coherence across application sections
- Whether experiences, interests, values, and goals are understandable in context
- Whether the application feels authentic to the student
- Areas that may be confusing, underexplained, or inconsistent
- Questions a reader might naturally have
- Opportunities for the student to clarify or strengthen their own presentation

What this package does not include

- College-list review, college-fit advising, or career-goal exploration
- Financial or affordability discussion

- Application rewriting or essay ghostwriting
- Promises, predictions, or guarantees of admission
- A formula for admission to a specific institution

Client journey

1. Intake - The student submits the agreed-upon completed or near-completed materials.
2. Application document review - VeriPathways reads the materials as a complete profile.
3. Feedback - Strengths, uncertainties, questions, and opportunities for clearer communication are identified.
4. Student revision - The student decides how to incorporate feedback and makes their own revisions.
5. Optional follow-up - If included in the final scope, the student discusses feedback or submits a defined second review.

Important boundaries

Student authorship. The student remains responsible for all application content and final revisions.

VeriPathways reviews and comments on materials but does not write essays or application responses on the student's behalf.

Admissions outcomes. VeriPathways does not promise, predict, or guarantee admission to any college or university. Admissions decisions are made solely by the institutions to which the student applies.

Financial considerations. Any discussion of college cost is intended to help families consider affordability as part of the college decision. It is not financial, tax, or investment advice.
